EDEN IS MY HOME.

BY REV. J. N. MAFFIT. Oh I have reamed through many lands, A stranger to delight;
A stranger to delight;
Sot friendship's hopes, nor love's sweet smile.
Could make my pathway bright.
Til on the sky a star arose,
And lit night's sable dome,
Oh! steer my back by that sweet star,
For Eden is my home.

Oh! Eden is my place of rest,
I love to reach its shore,
To shake these troubles from my breast,
And weep and sigh no more;
To that fair land my spirit flies; And angels bid me come— h I steer my bark o'er Jordan's wave, For Eden is my home.

Oh! take me from this world of wo, To my sweet home above, Where tears of sorrow never flow, And all the air is love; fy sister spirits wait for me, And Jesus bids me come— It I steer my bank to that bright land, For Eden is my home.

THE BRIDGE OF SIGHS.

I leaned over the gate, says a corre moon was climbing a ladder of silver clouds, and heard a little lifes history of one who has been walking over the "Bridge of Sighs."— There are no flowery paths beyond, but only the one where the old sexton walks before.

A QUESTION. And let the poor girl sleep the sleep. That wakes, we trust in heaven. For did not our Good-Father give, Unto this cne, a life to live? Was not her last breath loaded with A prayer to beforgiven?

As the twilight hours began, Pleading with a ion, on duty, Urging him to be a man. But unto her blue-eyed daughter, Though with love's words quite as Points she out the other duty.

What's a lady? Is it something Made of hoops, and silks, and airs, Used to decorate the parlor, Like the fancy rugs and chairs? Is it one that wastes on novels
Every feeling that is human?
If 'tis this to be a lady,
"Tis not this to be a woman.

Mother, then, unto your daughter Speak of something bigher far. Than to be mere fashion's indy— "Woman is the brightest star. If ye, in your strong affection, Urge your son to be a true man, Urge your daughter no less strong! Urge your daughter no less strongly.
To arise and be a woman,

Yes, a woman—brightest model
Of that light and perfect beauty,
Where the mind, and soul, and body,
Blend to work out life's great duty—
Be a woman—naught is higher
On the gilded list of lame;
On the Catalogue of virtue
There's no brighter, holier name.

Be a woman—on to duty,
Baise the world from all that's low,
Place high in the social heaven
Virtue's fair and radiant bow!
Lend thy influence to each effort
That shall raise our nature human;
Be not fashion's gilded lady—
Be a brave, whole-souled, true woman

Montaigne, in one of his essays, describes an accident which left him so senseless that he was taken up for dead. On being restored, however, he says: "Methought my life only hung upon my lips; and I shut my eyes to help thurst it out, and took a pleasure in languishing and letting myself go." A writer in the Quarterly Review records that a gentleman who had been rescued from drowning declared that he had not experienced the slightest feeling of suffocation. "The stream was transparent the day brilliant, as he stood upright he could see the sun shinning through the water, with a dreamy consciousness that his eyes were about to be closed on it forever. Yet he neither feared his fate nor wished to avert it. A sleepy sensation which soothed and gratified him, made a luxurious bed of a watery grave."
